

As a regular business traveler to New York and other areas on the East Coast, I find XM's traffic and weather services to be invaluable. The FCC has done such a poor job of regulating the commercial airwaves over the past 30 years as to render commercial, public radio unlistenable. I think it would set a dangerous precedent for the FCC to begin to regulate the paid service - and would cause me serious inconvenience as a weekly business traveler.